

MOMS - Management of Myelomeningocele Study

MOMS is currently recruiting study participants. MOMS is an NIH-sponsored randomized clinical trial designed to compare the safety and efficacy of prenatal surgery versus postnatal surgery for spina bifida. Pregnant women between 19 and 25 weeks with a suspected prenatal diagnosis of myelomeningocele may be eligible. Healthcare providers, patients and families are welcome to call for information about spina bifida and community resources, regardless of eligibility or interest in the trial.
